Journey through history with Pulitzer winner Annette Gordon-Reed at our 2016 Annual Dinner!

New Hampshire Humanities will welcome renowned historian and legal scholar Annette Gordon-Reed to present the keynote address at our 2016 Annual Dinner on Thursday, September 22 at the Radisson Hotel in downtown Manchester. Our 2016 Annual Dinner continues the celebration of the Pulitzer Prize Centennial taking place across the nation this year.

Gordon-Reed won both the Pulitzer Prize in History and the National Book Award for The Hemingses of Monticello: An American Family. Her most recently published book (with Peter S. Onuf) is “Most Blessed of the Patriarchs”: Thomas Jefferson and the Empire of the Imagination. She was awarded a MacArthur Fellowship, the National Humanities Medal, and the Woman of Power & Influence Award from the National Organization for Women. Reserve your seats today on the Annual Dinner page at www.nhhumanities.org.

Dialogues on the Experience of War: Facilitated Book Discussions for Veterans

Veterans come together this fall to examine shared experiences through the lens of literature

Since 9/11, two and a half million U.S. soldiers have served in the military, and more than 110,000 of those veterans call the Granite State home. When soldiers return home from deployment, experiential, social, and cultural barriers between veterans and civilians create a sense of isolation and separateness. Personal prospects for many returning vets are bleak, and despair may take the form of unemployment, divorce, addiction, homelessness, suicide, and undiagnosed or untreated PTSD.

The power of storytelling and dialogue is becoming recognized as a way to help veterans address both the experience of war and the social and cultural barriers that prevent returning soldiers from fully integrating into society.

The National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) has awarded a $79,590 grant to New Hampshire Humanities for Dialogues on the Experience of War: Facilitated Book Discussions for Veterans. The project is a collaboration with Dartmouth College and Dartmouth Undergraduate Veterans Affairs.

The project will offer New Hampshire veterans a chance to discuss and examine their experiences through the lens of classic literature. Beginning this fall, veterans will gather for fourteen weekly discussions led by New Hampshire Humanities-trained facilitator teams in four New Hampshire communities: Manchester, Littleton, Portsmouth, and the Upper Valley. The challenges of homecoming will be explored through the reading of Homer's The Odyssey and discussing Odysseus' 10-year journey home, allowing veterans to process their experiences of war. The model was developed by Roberta Stewart, Professor of Classical Studies at Dartmouth College, who has been conducting discussions for veterans in the Upper Valley for several years. Each facilitator team consists of a literary scholar, a health care provider from the veteran-serving community, and a veteran.

NEH created the Dialogues on the Experience of War program as a part of its current initiative, Standing Together: The Humanities and the Experience of War, which supports the study and discussion of important humanities sources about war. The humanities sources can be drawn from history, philosophy, literature, and film—and are supplemented by the stories of those who have served. The discussions are intended to promote serious exploration of important questions about the nature of duty, heroism, suffering, loyalty, and patriotism.

By telling stories, you objectify your own experience. You separate it from yourself. You pin down certain truths. You make up others. You start sometimes with an incident that truly happened... and you carry it forward by inventing incidents that did not in fact occur but that nonetheless help to clarify and explain.

COMMUNITY STORIES:

Soldiers Home & Away

For fourteen years, America has been mired in war, war being waged by less than one percent of the population. The relatively small number of active military service members has widened a cultural gulf between the military and civilian sectors. Enter the humanities!

New Hampshire Humanities has awarded the Friends of the Plaistow Public Library a Community Project Grant to present Community Stories: Soldiers Home & Away. This collaboration involving nine southern New Hampshire libraries and Timberlane Regional School District is the inaugural project of what organizers envision as an annual community read. The goal is to bring communities together through a common reading experience and expand awareness and understanding of topics that touch the lives of community members.

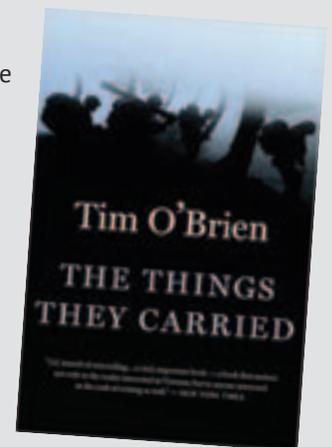

This year Community Stories will focus on veterans and is inspired by Tim O'Brien's novel The Things They Carried, a fictionalized account of O'Brien's experience serving in the Vietnam War. The Soldiers Home & Away programs will address the experience of war from military and civilian perspectives, and aim to open lines of communication, illustrate the experience of veterans and active duty personnel, and foster understanding of the men and women returning home from deployment. A variety of veterans, scholars, artists, authors, and other experts will be participating presenters. The nine partner libraries include Atkinson, Chester, Danville, Hampstead, Hudson, Newton, Salem, Sandown, and Plaistow. Each library has multiple copies of The Things They Carried to lend.

An astounding array of humanities and other programs, from book/film discussions and lectures to the landing of a Black Hawk helicopter and a veterans ball, will take place between September 16 and November 12. All programs are free and open to the public; however, some may require pre-registration and the number of attendees may be limited. Details about Community Stories:

Soldiers Home & Away, a full schedule of events and other details are available at www.communitystoriesnh.org. For more information, please contact project director Brianna Sullivan at 382-6011.

This project complements New Hampshire Humanities' ongoing special initiative Standing Together: The Humanities and the Experience of War.

New Hampshire Humanities welcomes Community Project Grant proposals from non-profit organizations on a variety of topics. Learn more at www.nhhumanities.org/community-project-grants.

New Hampshire Cemeteries and Gravestones

Rubbings, photographs, and slides illustrate the rich variety of gravestones to be found in our own neighborhoods, but they also tell long-forgotten stories of such historical events as the Great Awakening, the Throat Distemper epidemic, and the American Revolution. Find out more about these deeply personal works of art, and the craftsmen who carved them, with Glenn Knoblock, and learn how to read the stone "pages" that give insight into the vast genealogical book of New Hampshire. Indian Wars of New England

Michael Tougias takes the audience on a historic journey as the Colonists and Native Americans fought for control of New England from the Pilgrims' first arrival to the closing days of the French and Indian Wars. Using slides of maps, battle sites, roadside history, and period drawings, Tougias covers the Pequot War, King Philip's War, and the French and Indian Wars. Strategies of the Natives and Colonial raids are all featured. These include Rogers Rangers' raid on the St. Francis Indian village, Lovewell's Fight in NH and ME, the Fort at #4, and Metacom's uprising in the Connecticut River Valley. Discovering New England Stone Walls

Why are we so fascinated with stone walls? Kevin Gardner, author of The Granite Kiss, explains how and why New England came to acquire its thousands of miles of stone walls, the ways in which they and other dry stone structures were built, how their styles emerged and changed over time, and their significance to the famous New England landscape. Along the way, Kevin occupies himself building a miniature wall or walls on a tabletop, using tiny stones from a five-gallon bucket. Contact: 968-7487

Digging Into Native History in New Hampshire

Abenaki history has been reduced to near-invisibility as a result of conquest, a conquering culture that placed little value on the Indian experience, and a strategy of self-preservation that required many Abenaki to go “underground,” concealing their true identities for generations to avoid discrimination and persecution. Robert Goodby, Franklin Pierce University, reveals archaeological evidence that shows their deep presence here, inches below the earth’s surface. Hosted by Friends of the Kingston Historical Museum Association. Contact: Lesley Hume, 702-2021

8 WASHINGTON

Monday, 7:00 p.m., Camp Morgan Lodge, 339 Millen Pond Rd.

Poor House and Town Farms: The Hard Row for Paupers

From its earliest settlements New Hampshire has struggled with issues surrounding the treatment of its poor. The early Northeastern colonies followed the lead of England’s 1601 Poor Law, which imposed compulsory taxes for maintenance of the poor but made no distinction between the “vagrant, vicious poor” and the helpless and honest poor. Steve Taylor will explain how this confusion persisted for generations and led directly to establishment in most of the state’s towns of alms houses and poor farms, and later, county institutions which would collectively come to form a dark chapter in New Hampshire history. Hosted by the Washington Historical Society. Contact: 495-3284

9 SALEM

Tuesday, 7:00 p.m., Salem Meeting House, 310 Main St.

New Hampshire’s Long Love-Hate Relationship With Its Agricultural Fairs

The first agricultural fair in North America was held in what is now Londonderry in 1722, and it would become a wildly popular event lasting for generations until it came to be so dominated by gambling, flim-flam, and other “scandalous dimensions” that the legislature revoked its charter in 1850. But fairs have always had strong supporters and eventually the state came around to appropriating modest sums to help them succeed. Steve Taylor will discuss how temperance groups and others would continue to attack the fairs on moral grounds and their close connection to horse racing was a chronic flashpoint. Hosted by the Salem Historical Society. Contact: 893-8882

Mary Todd Lincoln: Wife and Widow

Living historian Sally Mummy portrays Mary Todd Lincoln as she muses on her life from her dreams as a girl to her years as First Lady during the Civil War. Mrs. Lincoln shares stories of her life with President Lincoln and the events of that evening in Ford’s Theatre when the assassin’s bullet not only changed the course of the nation but destroyed her life as well. From the opulence of the White House to the dreags of obscurity, Mrs. Lincoln lived out her life struggling with affliction and tragedy. Contact: Robin Koczur, 536-1204

“On This Spot Once Stood...” Remembering the Architectural Heritage of New Hampshire

New Hampshire has lost many of its important historic buildings to fire, neglect, intentional demolition, and redevelopment. In some cases, a plaque or marker provides a physical reminder of what was, but in other examples, no tangible evidence remains. Maggie Stier showcases some of the celebrated buildings that New Hampshire has lost, and explores how and why we remember and commemorate those losses. Her program will draw from historical and contemporary photographs, maps, and other historical records to explore the significance of these structures, explain their eventual fate, and analyze popular responses to the loss. Particular attention will be devoted to places where a building was memorialized in some way. Contact: 968-7716

A Walk Back in Time: The Secrets of Cellar Holes

Northern New England is full of reminders of past lives: stone walls, old foundations, a century-old lilac struggling to survive as the forest reclaims a once-sunny dooryard. What forces shaped settlement, and later abandonment, of these places? Adair Mulligan explores the rich story to be discovered in what remains behind. See how one town has set out to create an inventory of its cellar holes, piecing together the clues in the landscape. Hosted by the Winchester Historical Society. Contact: Elena Meiden, 239-7399

New England's Colonial Meetinghouses & Their Impact on American Society

New England's colonial meetinghouses embody an important yet little-known chapter in American history. Built mostly with tax money, they served as both places of worship and places for town meetings, and were the centers of life in colonial New England communities. Using photographs of the few surviving "mint condition" meetinghouses as illustrations, Paul Wainwright tells the story of the society that built and used them, and the lasting impact they have had on American culture. Brewing in New Hampshire: An Informal History of Beer in the Granite State from Colonial Times to the Present

Glenn Knoblock explores the fascinating history of New Hampshire's beer and ale brewing industry from Colonial days, when it was home- and tavern-based, to today's modern breweries and brew pubs. Unusual and rare photos and advertisements document this changing industry and the state's earliest brewers, including the renowned Frank Jones. A number of lesser-known brewers and breweries that operated in the state are also discussed, including the only brewery owned and operated by a woman before the modern era. Whether you're a beer connoisseur or a "tea-totaler," this lecture will be enjoyed by adults of all ages. Hosted by the Friends of the Ashland Town Library. Contact: 968-7928

Having a Fine Time in Manchester: Vintage Post Cards & Local History

Post cards have many a story to tell about the built landscape, disastrous events such as fires or floods, daily folk customs, and the identity of place. During the golden age of the post card, before telephones, personal messages could contain anything from the mundane, "Having a fine time, wish you were here..." to more profound reflections on family life or colorful portraits of towns and cities from the perspective of newly-landed immigrants. Using vintage post cards of Manchester, Robert Perreault will take you on a lively, nostalgic adventure through a major industrial center, home to people from around the world. A Woman That Keeps Good Orders: Women, Tavern Keeping, and Public Approval

Government regulations, licensing, handling drunks, controlling the flow of information— why would the Colonial-era government allow women to run a tavern? When her husband died in 1736, Ann Jose Harvey became the owner of a prominent Portsmouth tavern and sole guardian of seven small children. For at least twenty years, Harvey ran the increasingly prosperous establishment. Using documents related to Harvey's venue, Marcia Schmidt Blaine, Plymouth State University, explores the world of female tavern keepers. A tavern was potentially the most disruptive spot in town. Why would a woman want to keep one? Contact: 448-4213

(Not So) Elementary, My Dear Watson: The Popularity of Sherlock Holmes

The recent spate of Sherlock Holmes movies, television shows, and literary adaptations indicate the Great Detective is alive and well in the 21st century. Ann K. McLellan, Plymouth State University, will present Holmes as the most portrayed literary character of all time, with over 230 film versions alone in several different languages. Over the past century, Sherlockians created societies like the Baker Street Irregulars, wrote articles sussing out the “sources” of Doyle’s works, and, most recently, developed an entire online world of Holmesian fan fiction. Sherlock Holmes is now a multi-million dollar industry. Hosted by Wilmot Old Home Day Association.

Heady Stuff: Addiction Stories

New Hampshire Humanities gives grant to explore themes of addiction in literature

Through time, writers have grappled with addiction in their work and in their lives. As New Hampshire confronts an opioid addiction epidemic unbound by education, vocation, or class,

New Hampshire Humanities has awarded a grant to Southern New Hampshire University to explore the concept and ramifications of addiction in literature. On August 17 at 7:30 p.m. at 3S Artspace in Portsmouth, acclaimed best-selling author Leslie Jamison will speak about how writers have dealt with addiction as a subject and as a personal struggle. The event is facilitated by Benjamin Nugent, writer and director of SNHU's graduate writing program. Jamison is the author of The Empathy Exams, a New York Times best-selling essay collection, and a novel, The Gin Closet, a finalist for the Los Angeles Times First Fiction Award. The Empathy Exams, chosen as a Notable Book of 2014 and an Editor's Choice by the New York Times, was named one of the Top 10 Books of 2014 by Publisher's Weekly, Entertainment Weekly, Oprah, Slate, Salon, The L Magazine, and Time Out: New York. She holds a PhD in English from Yale University and has taught at Yale, Wesleyan University, the NYU Journalism Institute, and the University of Iowa. For information about the event, please contact Benjamin Nugent at (347) 217-3942.

Words and wit will sprout as guests enjoy nature-inspired literary activities when they take "A Walk in the Words" at Bedrock Gardens in Lee, supported by a grant from New Hampshire Humanities. Over two days in September, visitors can explore the Word Garden, participate in the Shape Poetry Slam, express their impressions through Haiku, build Once-Upon-a-Time Stories, take part in "What a Garden Means to Me," or enjoy a nature poem read by the "Poets in the Garden." Bedrock Gardens is recognized locally and nationally for its unique combination of whimsy, sculpture from recycled materials, landscape architecture, and commitment to sustainability. Events include:

Saturday, September 17, 10:30 a.m.:
"A Walk in the Words" Kickoff with author Rebecca Rule

Saturday, September 17, 12:00-4:00 p.m.
& Sunday, September 18, 1:00-3:00 p.m.:
"Poets-in-the-Garden" with poets David Ferry, Diane Freedman, and Gary White

Celebrate Winchester's musical and technological heritage

Supported by a grant from New Hampshire Humanities, the Friends of Public Art will kick off the Winchester Musical Heritage Project with events exploring Winchester's unique place in music history and manufacturing innovation. A lecture titled "Whatever Happened to Yankee Ingenuity?" will be held on Tuesday, August 16 at 7:00 p.m. at the Historical Society of Cheshire County in Keene. At the town-wide Jubilee all day on Saturday, August 20, participants can explore the town and its music and manufacturing history, including performances using both historic and modern instruments, walking tours, and workshops. The Jubilee centers on a panel discussion on how Winchester can learn from past innovations as it works to renew its economic community. For more information, contact Rowland Russell at 283-2377 or rrussell@antioch.edu.

New Hampshire Humanities welcomes Rebecca Kinhan

New Hampshire Humanities warmly welcomes Rebecca Kinhan as Communications Director. Kinhan has called New Hampshire home for thirty years, coming to the state as an English and fine art major at Notre Dame College and falling in love with the state's cultural treasures and visual beauty. Her extensive background in marketing, visual communications, graphic design, and brand development/management includes publication design, editing, social media and publicity for a variety of nonprofits and freelance corporate clients. A resident of Concord, she is also a fine artist and mother of two thespian daughters. Rebecca looks forward to helping New Hampshire Humanities build on its rich history, expand audiences, and find new ways of telling stories about the impact of the humanities around the state and across generations. She can be reached at rkinhan@nhhumanities.org.

The Grapes of Wrath: More Relevant Today Than Ever

John Steinbeck's classic novel The Grapes of Wrath has stirred and inspired readers for 77 years. The centerpiece of a multi-town community read funded in part by New Hampshire Humanities, this Pulitzer Prize-winning novel, set in the 1930s in the aftermath of the Dust

"Toward Los Angeles," by Dorothea Lange, courtesy of the Library of Congress, 1937. (LC-DIG-fsa-8b31801)

Bowl, chronicles one family's forced migration to California – a microcosm of the widespread devastation of the Great Depression. Steinbeck confronted universal themes while bringing readers along on the perilous journey of one ordinary family struggling to survive and build a new life. The author won the Nobel Prize for his sharp, insightful, and compassionate exploration of human nature in this and other classic novels.

The Fireseed Alliance is coordinating this collaboration among fifteen New Hampshire libraries: Amherst, Bedford, Bow, Brookline, Dunbarton, Goffstown, Greenville, Greenfield, Hollis, Lyndeborough, Mason, Milford, Mont Vernon, New Boston, and Wilton. Participants will have the opportunity to take a closer look at Steinbeck's examination of Depression-era America and to explore the ways this classic still resonates today. Project director Blanche Milligan notes, "The planning team has found the book to be an excellent bridge to contemporary issues including the changes in farming in New Hampshire, poverty, income disparity, foreclosures, climate change, and how individuals and governments respond to a human crisis that is caused by both man and nature." Each library will host at least one discussion of the book. The project also includes film showings, lectures, community discussions, and living history performances that will broaden participants' understanding of the novel's themes and how they relate to their own lives. From September 22 to 24, living historian Richard Maroid portrays President Franklin D. Roosevelt at four venues. On Thursday, September 27 at 6:00 p.m. in Concord, Dr. Luchen Li, UNH professor and president of the International Steinbeck Society, will facilitate a screening and post-film discussion of John Ford's brilliant 1940 film adaptation of The Grapes of Wrath. Li will be joined by New Hampshire filmmaker Samantha Davidson Green in a discussion of the film and its lasting legacy. The project culminates on Thursday, October 27 at 7:00 p.m. at St. Anselm College with author Jay Parini, who will discuss "Steinbeck in California: The Man and the Writer."

This project also received one of 77 "Big Read" grants awarded to cultural organizations across the country for 2016-2017 by the National Endowment for the Arts. Additional Big Reads events include photography exhibits, a "paint night," and the music and dance of the Depression era. On September 18, a kickoff event at the Labelle Winery in Amherst, featuring fiddlers Dudley and Jacqueline Laufman and local actors, will bring scenes from the novel to life. Learn more and view a list of events at www.fireseedalliance.org.

The NEA Big Read is a program of the National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) designed to broaden our understanding of our world, our communities, and ourselves through the joy of sharing a good book.

Discovering Dublin celebrates town's colorful past and present

The picturesque town of Dublin and the legacy of its famed art colony will be celebrated in August and September, supported by a grant from New Hampshire Humanities. Since the founding of the art colony in 1888, Dublin's love and commitment to the arts continues to thrive. The Dublin Community Center, partnering with the Dublin Historical Society, has planned several events to educate and engage area residents in the town's rich heritage in the arts and humanities.

On Thursday, August 4 at 10:00 a.m. the Dublin Historical Society Museum will host a tour of its Historical Museum that will feature hands-on activities for children, including a treasure hunt. A film called "The Dublin Art Colony Collection at the Thorne-Sagendorph Art Gallery," created by woodworker Paul Tuller will be shown at the Dublin Community Center on Thursday, August 25 at 7:00 p.m. Tuller will lead a post-film discussion and works by Tuller and other Dublin-area craftspeople will be displayed.

The project will conclude with a walking tour exploring the town's history on Saturday, September 10 at 2 p.m. from the Dublin Community Center. Featured sites include the Levi Leonard House, the Yankee House, the Dublin Public Library, and the Wait-Mason House. A discussion and refreshments will follow at the Community Center. The raindate for the tour is Saturday, September 17. Learn more and find the latest details at www.dublincommunitycenter.org.

Rockwell Kent, a student of Dublin Art Colony founder Abbott Handerson Thayer, painted Dublin Pond in 1903.

Be among the first to see our new Humanities to Go catalog!

Thank you to all who traveled from the far corners of the state to help make our 2016 Humanities Fair a huge success. This summer we're busy combing through evaluations and responses to more than 50 new programs that were auditioned in June, and now have the formidable task of selecting which programs will be included. We look forward to sharing them with you when we unveil our new catalog this fall. You can be among the first to see the new catalog at the Humanities to Go Catalog Launch Celebration on Wednesday, October 5 at 1:00 p.m. at the New Hampshire Historical Society, 30 Park Street, Concord. Watch your mailbox for more details!
